Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—Well, all I know is just what I read in the scandal sheets, and what I hold a clafite over as I prowled.

hither and yon. Well Sir, I must tell you more about that mining town of "Bodie," Cal. It was one of the famous mining camps of later days, but had been practically deserted for years, but with the demand for gold here lately there was a revival of the famous old place.

Harry Carr, one of the best newspaper men on the west coast, had been writing another story of what he meant to be a mining town to be resurrected, and about to reach gold again. He claimed the thing was running almost as wide open as any of our big cities, that the gambling and drinking was in a small way on a comparison with New York or Los Angeles.

Well in my times (I am talking like one of the early Pioneers), I have seen some of the boys foolishly, and at times otherwise, lay a small wager on the outcome of what later would be apparent as a hazardous game. And in passing by I had peeped in under swinging doors and there would be seen upping various nectars. Well Mrs. Rogers and I were just out prowling around. We were working on spelling a fine old classic, and had been taking a great part of the scenes on the original site where the play was laid, at Lake Tahoe. Mr. Henry King, our Director, had told me that he had seen just about all of my face that he desired for exterior photographic purposes, and that if I wanted I could head for home, and as they had a few more days work without me I needed to be in any hurry to get to home. Well that was right up my alley. I bet a lot of you like this too.

We went down through all the old early 49 camps, Sutter Creek, Angels Camp, in California, there the exact home of Mark Twain's jumping frog, and really the story that did more to make Twain than any other one thing he ever did. They have a Frog Rodeo there every year. Frog Singing, Frog Jumping, and wind up by eating all the frogs that had contested, and everybody wind up with a Frog in their throat. Then Brete Hart was there and all his stories are around in that country. Jackson, one of the early ones, I had made two pictures there previously, and had been back for ten years.

Then to Senora, another old time, but which held on fine, and is today a real little town. Then over Senora pass. Scenery Oh Boy what views. But its getting late we must get to Bodie. Its away over near the Nevada line in the sage brush desert. My wife was afraid to go, she had read Carrs articles and she was looking for whooping, shooting, and gambling. Well the poor Devil the night before, just twenty-four hours to correct time announcement, why the Fro-Hits, had raided the place, broke all the booze in 13 saloons, put 15 men under 1500 hundred dollar bonds, and you should have seen the place this night. Our car was the only thing moving in the town. Indignation meetings consisted of two and three huddled in front of what had been a saloon door. It was still lighted up, but asparilla was their diet. It was a real surprise raid. The mines hadnt opened that day, for they had had no sustenance for 24 hours and couldnt work. I talked with them, but it was almost like speaking over the body of a fallen comrade. Their voice was not only reverent but parched. They couldnt understand why they out of 120 million people should be discriminated against. Why should they be the only example of Prohibition? They felt that their work demanded as much or more liquid fortitude as is allowed tollers on Wall street. They estimated in low tones the amount of Bootleggers that these officers must have passed in their trip away out in this desert, from San Francisco where they had come. It will always remain in my memory as the dearest town I ever saw.

FRIENDS MEET TO HONOR LOCAL PASTOR

MESSAGES POUR IN FROM ALL PARTS, INCLUDING DEN-MARE

Friday was a happy day in the life of our good citizen Rev. Peter Kjolhede for it marked the fiftieth anniversary of his service in the ministry of the Danish Lutheran church, and fifty years of Christian stewardship. And Rev. Kjolhede wasn't alone in his happiness for his rejoicing was shared by hundreds of others, many of whom were here to spend the day with him and Mrs. Kjolhede.

The coming of the event only had to be mentioned by Rev. A. C. Kildegaard, a former minister of the Grayling church and now of Greenville, and president of the Danish Lutheran churches of Michigan, and it brought forth spontaneous response and it was decided that the day be fittingly celebrated.

The day began with services in the local Lutheran church at 10:00 a. m. at which time Rev. Kildegaard preached on the sermon, "Communion service was administered by Rev. S. D. Rodholm of Grandview College, Des Moines, Iowa.

Dinner was served in Daneshod Hall to the visiting guests by the ladies of the Grayling church at 12:30 o'clock, after which many took a couple of hours for sightseeing and visited the Hartwick Pines, the Military reservation, fish hatchery and other places.

At 3:00 p. m. there was a meeting at Daneshod hall, where there were many fine speeches made in which all were given an opportunity to participate.

At 6:15 a supper was served in Daneshod hall to which not only the visiting guests were invited but the members of the local church and friends as well. After the feasting there were more addresses with Rev. Kildegaard acting as toastmaster.

Rev. Kjolhede received his ordination at Cedar Falls, Iowa, September 28, 1880. His first pastorate was at Muskegon, Mich. Rev. Rasmus M. J. Jensen the present minister at Muskegon church brot with him items taken from the church reports at the time Rev. Kjolhede was the pastor.

This feature was specially enjoyed by all who heard it and it must have been an inspiration to its author to hear it again.

A group photograph taken fifty years ago at Cedar Falls at the time Rev. Kjolhede was ordained, was shown at the meeting. Co-incidental with the picture is the fact that Rev. Axel Kildegaard was in it, an infant in his mother's arms.

Among those present from out of the city at the celebration were the following persons: Rev. A. C. Kildegaard, Greenville, president of the Michigan District of Danish Lutheran churches. Rev. E. M. Back, Ludington, secretary Michigan district. Rev. Hakon Jorgenson, Newell, Iowa, president Danish Churches of America. Rev. Rasmus M. J. Jensen, Muskegon. Rev. Thorvald Kjaer, Manistee. Rev. E. Mortenson, Chicago. Rev. S. D. Rodholm, Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Jens Hanson and Mrs. Seeley, Manistee. Mrs. Rasmus Jensen, Muskegon. Rev. E. M. Back, Mrs. Chris Hanson, and Mrs. Madsen, Ludington. Mr. Christofferson, Victory, Mich. Mrs. A. C. Kildegaard and son Richard; Mrs. Anna Rasmussen, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Paulson and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Hans Paulson and the former's mother, and Mr. Albert Petersen, Greenville. Theodore Kjolhede, Ashland, Mich., son of Rev. and Mrs. Kjolhede, and his two sons and a daughter of Axel Kjolhede, another son of Rev. and Mrs. Kjolhede.

GRAYLING AS A CONVENTION CITY

That Grayling has many achievements to her credit, we have long been aware. That she has possibilities for a future is an acknowledged fact, but we believe we have never thought of ourselves in the light of a convention city; a real glad-hand town.

Whenever we have been called upon to entertain an outside organization, or have invited our neighbors to our guests, we have always shown a one hundred per cent "Eat, drink and be merry" spirit that has left a lasting impression with our guests. Real hospitality is one of the biggest assets a wide-awake, growing town can have, and we have it in full measure. Hospitality, along with our many features of unusual interest will bring a return visit every time.

Recently the Michigan Retail Lumbermen and their families were entertained in our city. Every effort was put forth on the part of the committee to give the visitors a good time. We are printing a "thank you" letter from the representative of the Flint Lumber Company that shows that their efforts were successful. Also a letter from the "Old Guard Lumbermen" an organization of Lumbermen in Detroit. They read as follows:

Flint Lumber Company, Flint, Mich. September 30, 1930.

Mr. T. Hanson, Grayling, Michigan. Dear Sir:

I don't know of any place in Michigan; Peter Petersen, Ashland. Mrs. Andrew Smith, Saginaw. Soren Andersen, Flint. John H. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook; Mr. and Mrs. William Green, and Mrs. Paulson, Detroit.

Congratulatory messages and letters were received from Rev. Svend Jorgenson, Detroit, expressing his regret that he was detained at home because of illness in his family; Rev. J. A. M. Rodholm, Denmark, formerly a minister at Manistee; Rev. E. M. Favrholt, Vancouver, B. C., also a former minister at Manistee; Bishop Ostendfeld of Zealand, Denmark; Rev. E. T. Wagner, Denmark, former superintendent of Grandview College, Des Moines. Besides the above there were messages from others in Denmark and from many places in the United States.

It was a wonderful day in the lives of Rev. Kjolhede and his loyal helpers and an occasion they will always cherish as long as they may be spared to be among us. Such honors come to but few and we are sure that in this instance they are most richly deserved.

MAN DIES FROM GASOLINE BURNS

FRANK INGLIS STARTS KITCHEN FIRE WITH GASOLINE

Francis Inglis, 37 years of age, an employee at the Grayling Manufacturing Co. plant, lost his life Monday when he attempted to start the kitchen fire with gasoline. The accident occurred at 5:00 o'clock a. m. and he passed away at Mercy hospital at 2:25 p. m.

Arising late on Monday morning and finding the oil can empty, Inglis stated to his father John Inglis, who was living with him, that he would start the fire with gasoline. He did so and when he applied the match there was a terrific explosion and immediately the man's clothing were ablaze. He ran out of the house, a veritable living torch. He carried in his hands the gasoline can and that exploded about as soon as he got out-of-doors, blowing out the bottom and the gasoline splashing all over the already flaming figure.

Fred Brown, living next door, heard the explosion and at first thought someone had fallen out of bed, but upon looking out of the window saw Inglis and at that time the flames were shooting up over his head. Brown, scantily clad, rushed to the rescue. He said that Inglis was dancing up and down and that he too, in his bewilderment, did the same for an instant. He discovered a bed blanket on a nearby clothesline which he quickly dipped into a tub of water and wrapped it around the burning man and soon had the flames extinguished.

Inglis was rushed to the hospital where it was found his flesh from his feet to his head was one charred mass, the skin in some places falling off. Death was apparently due from internal burns, caused by inhaling flames. The victim was made as comfortable as possible but he passed away at 2:25 o'clock that afternoon.

Francis Inglis was born in Grand Traverse county and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Inglis. His wife is a patient in the State hospital at Traverse City. He also leaves two young children, ages 4 and 6 years.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Marlin Maxwell officiating. Interment was at Elmwood cemetery, where his fellowworkmen had purchased a burial lot. Inglis was well liked among the other workmen at the factory and he was considered an honest, faithful and industrious employee. This is a very sad case and one which has deeply touched the people here generally.

Very truly yours, H. M. Jessop, Sec.

A GRAND OLD WARDEN

Of all the stories that have come down from the fire front this season here is the most eloquent: Twice this summer fire fighters have carried Rube Babbitt, Michigan's grand old game warden of Grayling, from the fire front, bearing him bodily away after he had fought to the point of utter exhaustion and lay on the ground, his face to the flames, overcome by smoke and heat and weariness.

Rube Babbitt is willing to die fighting fires to protect Michigan's young forests. In fact those who have settled shoulder to shoulder with him in the fire front this summer more than half suspect he is eager to end his well spent life in just that way and they tell you of it with a suspicious mistiness in their eyes.

There are few men who love the outdoors of Michigan as does this fine, square-shouldered, kindly eyed old woodsman from the AuSable. As long as his name lives the younger men of Michigan's conservation force will have a legend to live up to. Grand Rapids Press.

HUNTING GROUND MAPS BEING ISSUED

DISTRIBUTE DATA THROUGHOUT NORTHERN COUNTIES WHERE MOST OF LAND IS LOCATED

Lansing, Sept. 27.—Public hunting ground maps indicating the larger areas of state owned land available to the public for hunting, fishing and camping have been prepared by the game division of the Department of Conservation and are now being distributed throughout the northern counties where most of this land is located.

The maps are in county form and indicate by 40-acre parcels the state owned land in the county. Maps have been prepared for 25 of the 76 counties containing state land. These 25 counties were selected because they contain the larger more readily indicated on a map and found with comparatively little difficulty.

Maps on easels. The Conservation Department plans to furnish the courthouses and many of the post offices and other public buildings in each county with a map of that county, to post where the public can readily see it. The Department also is erecting these maps on rustic easels at prominent places along the main northern highways and along the main roads going through the larger areas of state land.

A pin on the map will show where the easel is located so that the hunters and others who read it can determine the location of the state lands in relation to the place where they are standing.

Land in Small Blocks. Michigan today has more than a million acres of public hunting ground. Much of this land is in small blocks and except by the people living in the vicinity, such lands and their locations are not generally known.

The Conservation Department hopes the maps will perform a real service to all hunters, anglers, and campers by showing where they may find state owned public lands.

TOP O' MICHIGAN POTATO AND APPLE SHOW

The Premium books of the Top O' Michigan Potato and Apple Show, to be held at Gaylord on October 29 to 31, are being mailed this week and show a slight increase in premiums offered this year over any previous year.

With an enlarged Junior Department and an additional class in apples, the premium list this year, including contests and special awards, totals over $1,700. The potato lists continue to be largest with over $900 offered in all potato classes, both adult and Junior divisions.

The potato growers of the Top O' Michigan should not hesitate to exhibit because their potatoes are small. The dry weather was general over all of northern Michigan and many potatoes will be small this year. The chances to win prizes at the show, however, are as good, if not better than ever before, according to B. C. Mellenkamp Secretary.

The best from the Top O' Michigan always goes to the State Potato Show in February. With the very bad potato crop in southern Michigan, all winners at the Top O' Michigan Show should have an opportunity of winning at the State Show and of showing the State show winners that the Top O' Michigan potatoes are supreme. Write to your county agricultural agent or to B. C. Mellenkamp, Boyne City for a premium list and program if you have not already received one.

Plan now to show by selecting potatoes at digging time.

BIRTHDAY CLUB ENTERTAINS MEMBERS

Mrs. Edward Moore was hostess to the Birthday club honoring her daughter, Mrs. Emory Craft and Mrs. Richard Thompson. There were ten members present and two guests.

The Club initiated Mrs. Enos Jennings and Mrs. Milford Hall and the ladies drew numbers for entertaining for the next twelve weeks.

After the business meeting the Club enjoyed "Cooties," prizes going to Mrs. Emory Craft and Mrs. Hall who won the second prize and also the Penny prize.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. Moore served a delicious lunch. A lovely birthday cake in pink and white with pink candles made the table very attractive. The Club expect to have a picnic this Thursday afternoon and on next Thursday will meet with Mrs. L. Scott at her home.

Another Lost City In The Thumb

Fred H. Stafford of Port Hope, from whom I obtained much of my material for the story on Lost Cities of the Thumb, writes me that I missed one. And that was a village called New River, situated north of Huron City, near Grindstone City. "It was centered," Mr. Stafford's letter reads, "about a salt block and was quite a flourishing place along in the late sixties. Today there is not a vestige remaining to show that it ever existed."

Greenbush Inn To Stay Open All The Year-Round

Greenbush Inn, pleased with its business during the closing summer season, will remain open throughout the entire fall and winter. This gives a chance to folks who appreciate the brilliance of autumn in Michigan to enjoy it with all the comfort of the warmer seasons. Carl E. Schmidt, the owner of Greenbush, writes us that parts of the Greenbush toboggan chutes are being rebuilt with particular attention to the safety of the sport. This is our first definite notice of preparation for winter sports, but we hope to have others soon.

Newcomers Give Praise To Scenic East Michigan

A man who has been travelling all over the United States by automobile has this to say: "There are three places of real scenic beauty in the United States—the Grand Canyon, Northern Michigan and Niagara Falls." The remark is reported to us by O. F. Louis, of Bay City, who never fails to pass along to us a boost for this territory. Mr. Louis also tells us of some new residents of ours from Ohio. After a trip along our Huron shore and through all the East Michigan territory, the lady of the family said, "I've been in California and several other states, but nowhere have I seen such grandeur and natural beauty as in Michigan."

Figures Qualify Tourist Traffic As Big Business In U. S.

Figures that qualify the tourist traffic unmistakably as big business, have been compiled by an economist. Basing his computation on a U. S. department of commerce bulletin which stated that American tourists spend three billion dollars a year in their own country, he figures that the tourist business equals that of the vast iron and steel industry; that it is eleven per cent greater than the clothing business or the meat packing industry; forty-five per cent over the printing and publishing business; fifty per cent more than the total volume of lumber products; 125 per cent more than the baking industry and 222 per cent more than the shoe business. And yet we know some merchants in Michigan who say that their increase in summer business isn't due to tourist traffic. Oh, well.

Clemenceau's Mind Saw Beauty In Nothingness

Shortly before his death, "Pier" Clemenceau spoke quite freely on his philosophy of life.

"Men do not amuse me any more," he said. "I find that they attach too much importance to themselves. A man consecrates his entire life to battles and in the end never sees anything in the world but beetles."

Asked what he thought about life after death he said:

"I don't know who had the first idea of Paradise. He must have found life too short, that fellow. Happy man! He wanted it to go on, with a less stupid government and with more amusing diversions."

"But nothingness is really superior to Paradise. Paradise is an improvement—nothingness is perfection. With nothingness, everything arranges itself perfectly."

To an "Amiable Child"

There is a monument near Grant's tomb in New York, the inscription on which reads: "Erected to the memory of an amiable child, St. Clair Follock, died July 16, 1897, in the fifth year of his age. Man that is born of woman is of few years, and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower and is cut down. He fleeth also as a shadow and continueth not." The child was the nephew of George Follock, a New York merchant who at one time owned the property. In this conveyance of the property in 1890 he stated: "There is a small inclosure near your boundary fence within which lies the remains of a favorite child, covered by a marble monument. You will convey a peculiar and interesting favor upon me by allowing me to convey . . . keeping it, however, always enclosed and sacred. There is a white marble funeral urn prepared to place on the monument which will not lessen its beauty."

Stories by the Yard

A literary man, or rather a writer of best-sellers, is in the habit of typing several thousand words of fiction every day. He always noticed, however, that every time he had to change the paper in his machine, he broke his train of thought and thus caused himself considerable annoyance and loss of time. So now he has hit upon the device of using a roll of perforated typing paper which unwinds itself onto the typewriter. Not only is this simple and effective, but it gives him the novel sensation of being able to measure his output, not in the number of words, but in yards!

Operation Saved Gull's Life

If seagulls are like people there is one gull flying around somewhere over Lake Michigan bragging to his fellow gulls about his "operation." He swallowed a tasty bit and found it had a fish hook in it with a boy on the other end of the line. The boy hauled the gull in, but could not remove the hook. An employee of a hospital was passing. He carried the gull to the hospital, where two doctors removed the hook, using an anesthetic. The gull soon regained consciousness, wobbled about drunkenly for a while, marched toward a window, and flew out over the lake.

Unsatisfactory

In Orange county divorce court a woman was suing because she said her husband had received kisses over a telephone. The husband, while admitting the charge, claimed that it was no cause for divorce.

"My goodness, your honor!" he remonstrated, "do you know what a kiss over the telephone is like?"

His honor protested his ignorance.

"Well," said the defendant, "it's like dreaming about something to eat when you go to bed hungry."—Los Angeles Times.

Sackcloth Old Symbol of Mourning for Dead

Sackcloth is mentioned several times in the Bible. It was a coarse texture of a dark color made of goat's hair. Smith's Dictionary of the Bible quotes two verses to substantiate the statement that the color of sackcloth was dark or black. One verse is Isaiah 50: 3: "I clothe the heavens with blackness, and I make sackcloth their covering." The other verse is Revelation 11:12, the second half of which reads: "and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair; and the moon became as blood." Sackcloth resembles cilicium of the Romans, named after the province of Cilicia in Asia Minor, in which was situated Tarsus, the native city of St. Paul, who knew and at times followed the trade of tent maker, that is, the making of tents out of cilicium, the cloth made of goat's hair. This cloth was the sackcloth of the ancient Hebrews. It was used for making sacks and for making rough garments used by mourners, which were in extreme cases worn next the skin, but at other times they were worn over the coat in place of the outer garment.

First Brick House in Quaker City Preserved

On Lansdowne drive, in the West park, near Thirty-fourth street and Girard avenue, stands the first brick house built in Philadelphia, says an article in the Philadelphia Record. William Penn built it for his daughter, Letitia, when they lived at Market street between Front and Second. The founder was a man of simple habits and he ordered the house built plain and small, of red brick, two stories high, and with a small rear addition. It was the first house in the city to have a cellar and a garret.

For many years it stood on Letitia court, while other structures grew up around it almost hiding it from view. For a while after Letitia's death it was used for a tavern.

Finally in 1833, as an outcome of the historic interest it inspired during the celebration of the bicentennial anniversary of the founding of Pennsylvania, it was carefully taken down and re-erected on its present site in the park.

You're Hired

The great comic magician was in need of an assistant to aid him in performing his mirth-provoking tricks, and was interviewing a young man who had applied for the job in answer to the advertisement the magician had placed in the newspaper.

"I need a man to help me who can keep a straight face all through my performance; who will under no circumstances allow a smile on his face no matter what silly things I might do or say. Now, what are your qualifications for this position?"

"Well," said the young man, "I used to be a page boy in the house of representatives."

Queer Things in Showers

Many reliable records can be found of showers of larvae, lichen, leaves, hay, worms, toads, frogs, fish, mussels, birds, wheat, oranges, pebbles, salt and so on. In one case an alligator two feet long came down with a rain in Charleston, S. C. In general, it may be said that these objects are first carried into the sky by a tornado.

They are usually carried a considerable distance, so that their source remains a complete mystery. Colored rains and snows are also fairly common. These are usually due to dust, pollen, small water life, and so on. Fish as much as 10 inches long have been found far inland.

American Charities

It has been estimated that the total amount given to charity in the United States is over $300,000,000 a year.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

There are certain places in this world which appear to have personified; some happy, some sinister. There is, for example, a New York apartment which, even when it is empty, has a somber atmosphere. I know something of its history. An artist lived there with a pretty and attractive wife. They were divorced and he married one of his models. They fought so that they were finally asked to move. Another young couple moved in. They, too, began to quarrel bitterly. In a fit of rage, the man one night pushed his wife down a flight of stairs. Her leg was broken by the fall; she left him.

A bachelor took the apartment. One evening a friend borrowed it, met a woman there, who, he, and shot himself. Hate, cruelty, disloyalty and murder have left something behind them inside those walls. The apartment has been repainted and redecorated since then; but somehow the flowers on the bright wallpaper, with which the landlord tried to make it cheerful, look unhealthy. I have few superstitions; but I shouldn't care to live there.

The artists who a short time ago were growing affluent on smart, modern drawings, now find little work. They have been caught in the wheel of time. Their place on the rim of the wheel has passed its peak and is on the way down. All artists and writers, in fact, are a little disturbed. When the flapper age was followed by the jazz age, and that by the collegiate age, they had something definite to work on. They knew where they were going. But those ages have passed and now there is a blank period. Something must come out of it but nobody knows exactly what it will be—just what is coming up on the rim of the wheel. Artists, authors, dramatists, all are groping for it; but they haven't found it.

Singers and music, which have been the backbone of radio entertainment, are losing their popularity a bit. The big features of the programs now seem to be humor and information. Monologues and dialogues have the greatest vogue. Listeners seem to want a type of vaudeville, wisecracking philosophy, news and comment, instruction. Radio is becoming journalistic; furnishing front page and sport page stuff, editorials and columns.

Rudy Vallee thinks that Guy Lombardo is the best orchestra conductor of his type in the business; says that Lombardo has more ideas and can do more than any of the others. That is high and generous praise.

The old toastmaster idea has developed into the modern master of ceremonies; M. C. they call them in the parlance of the profession. You find them in night clubs and theaters. They introduce performers and act; fill in stage waits; do stuff of their own; keep the performance moving; see that a good time is had by all. Among the better known masters of ceremonies are Paul Ash, who came to New York from San Francisco by way of Chicago, Frank Fay, Lou Holtz, Benny Rubin, Gene Malinin, Harry Richmond, Eddie Cantor and Ed. Wynn. Act as masters of ceremonies at their own shows, and then, of course, there is "Tootsie" Gulnae.

Della J. Akeley, now in Paris, writes to say that she left the African pygmies all small and happy. Mrs. Akeley is the only woman I know who wanders around the Belgian Congo and other parts of the Dark Continent, alone, except for native bearers. On this trip she remained in Africa for almost a year, using a moving picture camera more than a gun, although she is a splendid shot. She shot the largest elephant in the group at the Natural History museum. This time she was collecting for the Brooklyn museum and doing some research work for various governments.

Irvin Cobb recently observed Ring Lardner wearing a silk hat which was a bit buffed.

"I do not know," said Mr. Cobb, "through what vicissitudes that hat has passed, or what things happened to it; but none of them were for the best."

Census in Shanghai Puts Population at 2,927,858

Shanghai—Shanghai has increased in population to a point where it now ranks among the ten largest cities in the world, according to statistics of the bureau of public safety of the Chinese municipality.

A census taken last spring gives the total population of Shanghai as 2,927,858 persons, apparently ranking Shanghai as fourth, with Paris and Chicago as competitors with New York, London and Berlin ahead.

Of the Shanghai total, 42,000 are foreigners resident in the International Settlement. There is also a considerable foreign population in the French concession and nearly 10,000 in Chinese territory.

Arkansas Reports

Breathing his mild protest against the great American game of bluff and brag, a timid soul addresses the Arkansas Thomas Cat. "Do you not think," he ventures, "that in this great country of ours there is, to a degree, too much of misleading demeanor and, perhaps, a modicum of—if I may say it—deceit?" "You masticated a mouthful, brother," snorted the editor. "If all the bull this country produces were beef, porthouse steak would sell for 10 cents a ton."

Coldest Spot on Earth

in Small Texas Town

Nature's cold spots, like the Arctic and Antarctic regions, are hopelessly outclassed by a basement in Soncy, Texas. Here there is a laboratory of the United States bureau of mines, the business of which is to produce helium for inflating dirigibles and balloons. The phrase "zero weather" would mean a scorching-hot day in comparison to the temperatures daily produced in this plant, for the production of helium requires a temperature of 900 degrees Fahrenheit below zero!

The helium is made from natural gas. It is produced by cooling the gas to 800 degrees below zero, at which low temperature all the elements in the gas except helium are liquefied. The helium may then be drawn off as a gas. The rest may then be thawed out, after which it can be used for illuminating or heating purposes just as if nothing had been taken from it.

English Sheep-Shearers

Make Festival of Work

In the rural districts of England sheep-shearing time is made the occasion of festivity and merrymaking. In Devon particularly it is an age-old custom that all neighboring farmers should unite to get the work done as quickly as possible. At the same time they have merry evenings. Each farmer is served in turn, all the other farmers trooping up to do the sheep shearing for him. The "host" of the day takes no active part in the work, for it is his job to see that the others are happy and well served with beverages. A shearer does about 30 sheep in a day. The day's work is not finished until well after dark. But when the last sheep has been shorn, a ram's horn is filled with liquor and handed round. As each man drinks, he cries: "Here's health to the flock." After this the evening is devoted to feasting, drinking or merrymaking.

Orchids for Every One

The middle of May is the height of the orchid season in the tropical countries to the south of us and at that time it is possible to buy orchids by the bunch on the streets of the City of Mexico at a price which would make the American girl envious. The blooms grow wild in the Mexican country and are gathered by the peasant people and carried into the cities. The promenade of the City of Mexico are lined with men and women from the country districts who have come loaded with the blooms. These rival in size and beauty the flowers which are readily sold for several dollars each. In the City of Mexico one may buy a bunch of about two dozen flowers for a price about equal to 25 cents of American money.

Damaged

Potter arrived at his studio one morning and found that during the previous night it had been ruined by fire.

He at once telephoned to his insurance agent to come and estimate the damage.

An hour later the man arrived.

"Now with regard to these canvases," went on the agent. "You say they cost about $2.50 each."

"About that."

"Were they just plain canvases?" asked the insurance man.

"No, I'd painted on most of them," Potter returned.

"Ah," said the agent thoughtfully. "Then supposing we say $125 each?"

Convent in the Clouds

If you want to see a real medieval convent in Italy go to Fusca, and from Bibiana you will be able to get to La Verna, the convent on the rock, either on foot or in a carriage. La Verna is indeed on the summit of an impressive rock, a strange wooded height amid barred lands. It was given to St. Francis of Assisi by Pope Cantani, lord of Chiusi, in 1213. Here the saint lived his hermit life, and it is affirmed to be the scene of his stigmata in 1224. Within are many fine works of art, and in the little Church of the Angels there is some Della Robbia. The surrounding forest is magnificent, and the view from La Penna will be ample reward for the climb.

Quaker Meeting House

At Quakam, in Sussex, England, there is a picturesque old Quaker meeting house known as "The Blue Idol." Tradition says it was built of the timber of one of William Penn's ships. The grave of Penn's daughter Letitia is in the adjoining burial ground. But why is the building called "The Blue Idol?" It is a strange name suggesting rather the contents of an eastern temple than the rendezvous of a quiet God-fearing people. Originally it was called "Little Slaters," and it acquired its present mysterious name towards the end of the Seventeenth century.

Seedless Oranges

The Washington navel orange originated at Bahia, Brazil, in the early part of the Nineteenth century and was introduced into California by William Saunders of the Department of Agriculture in 1870 through Mrs. L. G. Tibbet of Riverside, Calif.

Telescope Traced Back to Seventeenth Century

By the aid of a grant from the Rockefeller foundation to Leyden university enough funds have been collected to enable the university observatory to build its own telescope at Johannesburg, in South Africa. As we know, many of our scientific instruments had their origin in far-off centuries, but surprisingly enough the telescope does not seem to have been developed until the Seventeenth century. Although the famous traveler, Sir Richard Burton, claimed that the telescope was known to Arabian scientists many years before this time, the father of the modern instrument was produced in 1608 by Hans Lippersheim of Middleburg. At once the importance of the invention was realized, and telescopes were on sale in Paris within a year. Galileo, the famous astronomer, heard of the Dutchman's invention, and immediately made a telescope himself, and on the first night that he used it, in 1610, discovered three of Jupiter's moons. A year later Kepler invented the astronomical telescope.

SCHOOL NOTES

Can we gradually re-form our thoughts—or, in other words, re-form our mental dwelling-places—must we take them as they chance along? As well ask if the pilot must always go exactly with the wind. The same "faith" or state of mind that tends to restore, also would tend to prevent, therefore the two involve but one principle. . . .

A thought-habit, like any other habit, is only formed through systematic persistence. But he who discerns the law and earnestly tries to utilize it will be a thousand times rewarded. The affirmation of wholesome suggestions should begin long before their seeming necessity. They then become one's most intimate companions, and the order of their action is from within, outward. The law that one becomes or grows like his ruling ideals has long been known, but it too rarely has been utilized. Henry Wood.

The Physical Education classes in the Grayling High School are now well under way. Miss Virginia Jacques, Physical Education director, adopted the "squad" system in her classes; beginning with the 5th grade and on thru the high school.

We have organized a new library and are going to make "good reading" our goal. Eight people each week are given the privilege of using the library before school.

The first two rules to be learned and obeyed are:

Always remember to wash your hands before you read these books.

And:

Please do not pull the books about nor place them facing wrong side out!

Arrange them neatly in a row so that their names will plainly show.

The Preacher And the Doctor

The New Testament contains a wonderful picture of a most sacred comradeship. It is the friendship of a preacher and a doctor. Preacher Paul and Doctor Luke. And as we read the story through we sense the beauty of the friendship of these professional men in such lines as: "Luke, the beloved physician," "Luke, my fellow-worker," "Only Luke is with me."

Such lines indicate how wonderful this friendship had become, and how gracious is the fellowship between two cultured, congenial spirits. The preacher inspired the doctor in his professional duties and may have had something to do

Bones of Long Ago
Siam's Wise King
Rays That Pierce Steel

What the world needs more than anything else just now is optimism, especially in America, with all monies of war cent and "too much" of everything.

Alfred B. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, refuses to join the downhearted, pessimistic. He says the automobile industry has reached the "bottom of the cycle of depression" and has begun a slow but sure return to normal conditions. This is apparent, not only in the automobile business, but in all lines of industry.

In Greenwich Village 100 years ago respectable citizens were buried in a quiet graveyard. As they bought their graves each probably thought, "Here I shall rest in peace until Gabriel comes to get me."

But New York city needs the land and steam shovels are now digging up the graveyard. Bones are mixed, the skull of one young lady perhaps near the feet of some old man—a gruesome travesty of the Rth-Rola incident.

Police "guard the bones" and they will be buried to finish the "dust to dust" process elsewhere.

Fortunately those dead of 100 years ago are really not injured. And, anyhow, in the course of time, a few million million years at most, this earth itself will go back to cosmic dust.

The finest grave is only temporary. We must look elsewhere for comfort.

The king of Siam, who suffers from a dangerous infection of the eye, would have known just what to do before civilized science came. He would have gone to the temple. Priests of the strange Siamese religion would have gone through magic motions, calling upon powers of light and darkness.

Then the king would have died of his infection probably. Things have changed. This modern king of Siam says to his priests: "Much obliged, but this is real illness and I can't afford to depend on imaginary cures."

He is coming to Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore.

These still young remember the first announcement of the X-rays. Pictures showed dimly outlined skeletons of rats or cats revealed by X-ray penetration.

Next came X-ray pictures of broken bones. Now the X-ray is as much a part of industry as it is of surgery and medicine.

According to the latest amazing announcements, the "Gamma ray" enables scientists to look through solid steel, beams of skyscrapers or the armor of battleships.

Thus weak spots can be detected, any defect inside of the metal being actually "seen." This reminds you that men can do whatever they can imagine.

Gasoline prices are cut in Britain and Holland. Prices that automobile owners in Europe add one to your million reasons for being glad you live in America.

In Holland, as in France, they sell gasoline by the quart, not by the gallon. The price in Holland is now cut to 16 cents a quart. Imagine paying that.

No wonder Sir Henri Deterding, boss of the big Dutch oil company, can afford to fight American oil men on their home ground!

David Weinberg, forty-four, a tailor, has figured that saying what you think is sometimes dangerous. He was interested in Communism and discussed it with his neighbors in Miami so the police say. And he had books on the subject.

Men kidnapped him from his house, took him in an automobile, stripped him naked, beat him, tarred, feathered, handcuffed him, wrapped him up in a white hooded cloak, then threw him out of the automobile in his own neighborhood.

Secretary Lamont, head of the Department of Commerce, finds a bright spot in the low prices of raw goods. Big industries, taking advantage of low prices purchase great quantities of materials.

In the career of Henry Phipps, who died recently, ninety-one years old, there is a moral for millions of young men. A great majority will not be interested in the moral, but here it is: More than 70 years ago Henry Phipps, young clerk in a hardware store in Ohio, sold powder to coal miners, other things to other people.

And when his work was done he walked eight miles there and eight miles back to keep books for a blacksmith and ironworker unable to keep accounts.

That blacksmith, with Carnegie and Phipps, was late the steel business. They prospered.

Phipps undoubtedly had business genius as had Carnegie. But if Phipps had not been willing to walk eight miles there and back, and get ahead a few extra dollars a month, and get ahead in the world, he would not have gone into business with Carnegie, and he would not now be leaving many millions to his children.

Old Musical Instrument
A plectrum was a strange instrument shaped like the Greek letter delta. It was used by the ancient Hebrews. In medieval times a plectrum had from 15 to 20 strings and a sounding board. It was played by plucking the strings with or without a plectrum.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

Change the horse's feed occasionally, though not suddenly. A horse like a human being—likes variety in his diet.

Now is the time to dip livestock for lice, sheep ticks, true ticks and mange. These pests will be more troublesome later on, when it will be cold to dip stock.

In regions where parasites interfere with sheep raising, breed ewes, in time to lamb early, advises the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and market the lambs before the worms share your profit.

The saying "Three days rain and then a frost" has a little basis in fact, says the Weather Bureau. The weather conditions preceding a frost in fall and spring frequently are an area of low barometer, overcast skies and rain but not necessarily three days of rain; as a matter of fact three consecutive days with rain are of very infrequent occurrence. After the low barometer passes an area of high barometer and cold northerly winds come on, and if the sky be clear, the wind light and the temperature sufficiently low, frost is imminent.

Young pigs are an easy prey for roundworms and until they are four months old special care must be taken to avoid worm infection. Fall pigs may be farrowed in individual houses on a clean pasture sown to a good forage crop on which no pigs have been pastured. Except in the extreme north, pigs born in early fall will be past the age of greatest susceptibility to worms when it is time to put them into winter quarters. However, winter quarters should be thoroughly cleaned before pigs are placed in them.

Careless disposal of offal from livestock slaughtered on the farm is one of the ways in which parasites are spread, according to the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, which says that offal should be tanked or treated in such a way as to kill all parasitic material. Offal is often thrown out and allowed to decompose in an offensive manner. Dogs eat this material, and as parts of carcasses are rejected, the dogs become infested with tapeworms which they in turn carry to livestock and infest them with the bladderworms. Among the tapeworms spread in this way is the deadly hydatid which forms a cyst the size of an orange, or larger, in cattle, sheep, and swine, and in man. Offal is also a prolific source of blowflies which breed in it in great numbers.

Keep Farm Woods Growing

Farm woodlands yield, on the average, only one-half to one-third of the wood that could be grown under good management, says the Forest Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The chief essentials in keeping farm woods producing are preventing fires, allowing humus to collect on the forest floor, and maintaining a fully stocked stand of thrifty, growing trees. Do not allow large openings in the woods; they reduce the annual yield of timber. If trees are to be planted, select those native to the region which grow most rapidly and produce the most useful kinds of woods. Natural seeding in woodlands can be promoted by harrowing the open spaces, logging in a good seed year, and leaving several seed trees to the acre. After logging, a new stand of young trees usually starts from seeds or sprouts from stumps. The most thrifty sprouts come from clean, well-cut stumps of trees felled in late fall, winter, or early spring. Trees that reproduce most successfully by sprouts are such hardwoods as the oaks, hickories, chestnuts, basswood, gums, cottonwood, and willows, and young short-leaf pitch pines. In logging, unnecessary injury to young growth should be avoided.

Proteins from animal sources are generally better for poultry feeding than those of vegetable origin, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Meat scrap, fish meal, and tankage are good sources of animal protein, and supply valuable minerals in addition. Another advantage of animal proteins, especially milk and meat scrap, is that they are highly digestible. Protein in a good grade of fish meal is probably equal to the same amount of protein in meat scrap. Tankage is not so good as the other proteins for poultry and needs to be supplemented with minerals. One of the best sources of animal protein is milk, which has a relatively greater feeding value than its actual protein content. It helps to prevent mortality of baby chicks, to increase the rate of gain of growing chicks, and to increase the fed consumption and egg production of laying stock.

TB Cautions

Tuberculosis is not likely to be introduced into a healthy herd of cattle if the following precautions are observed, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Purchase only from herds known to be free from tuberculosis or from herds under supervision for the eradication of the disease. Don't feed calves with milk or other dairy products from tuberculous cows. Don't allow cattle to graze in community pastures. Cattle also contract tuberculosis at fairs and exhibitions, or through shipment in cars which have not been disinfected properly after carrying infected cattle.

Avoid Shipping Losses

Losses of livestock during shipment are heaviest in the fall and winter, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which recommends the following precautions. Avoid hard driving and allow ample time for rest before loading. On arrival at the pens, don't let the animals fill up on water; let them rest and feed native grass or nonlegume hay. Avoid overfeeding in cars. In cold weather, bed the car wall. Give feed and water at intervals enroute. The 28-hour law specifies five hours of rest as the minimum. The common practice of withholding water from animals until they are very thirsty, so that later they will take a heavy fill, is harmful, says the department, and should be discontinued. This practice will increase the feed consumption and egg seriously that they are slow in resuming normal feeding and gain in weight.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Rulers of Soviet Russia Demoralize Wheat Markets of the World.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SOVIET Russia does with her might what her hands find to do, especially if it is something that may annoy and embarrass the "capitalistic" nations—meaning all that are not Soviets. Of late the Communist dictators in Moscow have been devoting much attention to wheat, selling short on the Chicago Board of Trade and dumping grain on the European markets at cut prices, resulting in the lowest prices for wheat in many years and much indignation and alarm in various countries.

The Russian operations on the Chicago board were made public by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, who asked the officials of that organization to do something about it. Those gentlemen, while instituting an investigation, intimated that as the board was open to the world for trading they might not be able to do much to prevent such hedging in the future. Anyhow, these operations were in themselves far less important and portentous than the dumping of Russian wheat and the evident fact that Russia was becoming a serious competitor in the grain market of the world with the United States, Canada, Argentina and other wheat-growing countries. The Soviet rulers absolutely control the production and marketing of grain in Russia, and though that country is not yet producing enough for its own needs, they are keeping the inhabitants on short rations and selling the grain abroad because they need the money. Soon, maybe by next year, their system of mass production aided by the use of American farm machinery will be in full effect, and apparently the farmers of other countries will have to meet the situation by similar mass production methods, or go under.

DURING the week many suggestions for relief were made in many quarters. A Rumanian in the League of Nations assembly pleaded for a European preferential tariff to protect the farmers of eastern Europe. The Swedish head of a great Argentine wheat firm said the best method would be for the world to boycott Russian wheat. In the Baltic states there were demands for government action against the Russian dumping that threatened the ruin of local industries and traders. Four representatives of the Canadian grain trade sailed for London with the dominion premier and other cabinet members to attend the imperial conference opening October 1, making it likely that the grain situation would be considered by the conference.

Officials of the American Farm Bureau federation, the National Grange and the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative union announced they had been investigating the disastrous wheat slump situation and would report their findings soon. The farm federation, Secretary Winter states, has had under consideration for some time legislation designed to more thoroughly regulate the hoards of trade to "prevent just such manipulation as has occurred during the last few months." Congressman Fish of New York, chairman of the house committee on Communist activities, summoned the members of the committee to Chicago for a hearing on the Russian short selling on the Chicago board.

Toward the close of the week wheat prices recovered somewhat, due to liberal buying and to reports that the Russian interests were covering their short debts. In Chicago the Russian scare was regarded as about passed, but from London came a dispatch saying that Canadian and Russian grain was competing for sales and that American hard winter wheat was in small demand.

PROSPECTS for early disarmament in Europe, or even reduction of armament, were put on the skids when it was officially announced at Geneva that negotiations between France and Italy for settlement of their naval problems had been discontinued. The only point of agreement between the two governments, said one of the Italian experts, was on the naval building holiday to last until the end of the year. Some of the League of Nations delegates, including the British, seemed to think it would be at least advisable to postpone the conference of the League preparatory disarmament commission, scheduled for November 3.

The French and the Italians blame each other for the failure of the conversations, but at this distance the Italians appear to have the better of the argument. After France refused the Italian suggestion that British experts aid in the conferences, Italy still insisting that her right to naval parity with France be nominally admitted, proposed a new yardstick whereby the number of units as well as tonnage would be considered. The plan would give France a big advantage in actual tonnage between 1930 and 1935. France rejected the offer and made a counter proposal which Italy considered so drastically unfavorable to her that it could not be considered.

THIS Franco-Italian situation, in the opinion of some observers, may imperil the three-power London agreement, because England depends on a satisfactory reduction of the French and Italian naval programs in order to maintain the two-power standard which she insists upon for the British navy. It may well mean, too, the renewal next year of the naval building race among the powers, and it is likely to have effect on the debates in the next congress of the United States.

J. J. London of Holland, chairman of the League preparatory disarmament commission, outlined before the assembly commission the status of the general question, and despite the Anglo-French deadlock picked the commission would meet November 1.

mission would meet November 1. "Apart from naval questions, there are the questions of available man power, war material and budgetary expenditures and the matter of creating a permanent disarmament committee as well as dealing with arbitration and security," he said. "We are determined to reach a conclusion in November and the January council can then fix the date for a general disarmament conference."

CHANG, dictator of Manchuria, has moved emphatically to put an end to the civil war in China. His armies marched to Peiping, occupying Tientsin on the way, and taking possession of the old capital city. Proclamations demanding that the fighting cease and assuring peace to northern China. Chang gained complete control of Chihli province without the firing of a single shot, and his troops settled down for a long stay. The leaders of the northern rebel alliance withdrew to the mountains of Shan province and their future movements were uncertain.

The collapse of the rebellion and the action of the Manchurian war lord lead the Soviet Russian government to consent to the opening of the Chinese-Russian conference in Moscow on October 11. Russia had been holding up this meeting in the hope that the Nationalist government would fall.

SENATOR NYE'S campaign investigating committee went to Lincoln, Neb., and learned a lot about the Republican senatorial primary campaign in that state that is pleasing to the insurgent Republicans and correspondingly annoying to the Republican national senatorial committee. It appears from the evidence that George V. Norris, young grocer of Broken Bow, was induced to enter the primary in order to force Senator George V. Norris to run as an independent, and that the scheme was engineered by Victor Seymour, now assistant vice chairman of the above mentioned senatorial committee. WITNESS: said Grocer Norris received a $500 bond after completing his filing.

NICHOLAS ROOSEVELT as vice governor of the Philippines was decidedly obnoxious to the natives, who asserted he was against independence for the islands and also was out of sympathy with and prejudiced against the Filipino people and Oriental in general. Therefore Mr. Roosevelt wrote to President Hoover last week that his usefulness there was impaired and it was best for him to retire. The President accepted the resignation "reluctantly" and immediately announced the appointment of Mr. Roosevelt as minister to Hungary. In that post he will succeed J. Butler Wright, who will be made minister to Uruguay to succeed Leland Harrison, resigned. Who will be vice governor of the Philippines was not announced.

NEW YORK Republicans went wet in their state convention and nominated for governor Charles E. Tuttle, who recently resigned as federal prosecutor in New York city. The liquor plank, adopted over the strenuous objections of the dries, favors repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and restoration to each state of the right to deal with the liquor problem as its citizens see fit, but with the proviso that the saloon system and private traffic in intoxicating beverages be outlawed everywhere by the Constitution.

KENNETH MACKINTOSH, a member of President Hoover's law and enforcement commission, says that when that body reconvenes on October 8 he will insist that it "go to the guts of the prohibition question." He regards the issue as one of the most important economic and social problems since the question of slavery, and wants the commission to say whether or not the dry law is enforceable, and if not, what can be done about it. Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who is being boomed by his admirers for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1932, has just returned from Europe and in the interviews he granted he made it evident that if he is a candidate it will be on a wringing wet platform.

CHILE'S government frustrated an attempt at military revolution which was started at Concepcion. Five Chilean exiles landed there in an airplane and tried to induce the garrison to revolt. They were at once arrested by military authorities, as were later a number of others, officers in the army. The plane used by the exiles was piloted by two Americans, Edward O. De Lorin and Reed S. Doyle.

A DOLF HITLER, head of the rampant Fascist party of Germany, declares his party intends to destroy the treaty of Versailles, by legal means if possible, otherwise by means looked upon by the world as illegal. Hitler made this assertion when he was called as a witness at the trial of three Reichwehr officers accused of treason. "The National Socialists do not regard the international agreement as law, but as something forced upon us," he said. "Germany is gagged by the peace treaties. We do not acknowledge our guilt in the war, especially not the guilt of future generations. When we shall oppose these treaties by every possible means we shall find ourselves in the midst of revolution."

"We shall oppose these treaties both diplomatically and by completely evading them. They may be looked upon by the world as an illegal method, but we will not employ it until the party has been victorious. After two or three more elections our party will be in the majority."

Angels and again he stated with emphasis and emotion that he was planning to "go to the limit." "We don't need an armed revolt," he said "all we need is another election."

Encouraged by the success of the Hitlerites in Germany, the Fascists of Austria brought about the downfall of the Schoner cabinet.

Testing Supplies

Some curious tasks fall on the "special investigators" of our big railways who have to test all the goods supplied for the company's use. They may have to count the number of bristles in a broom, separate wool from cotton in carpets, or discover how much vibration a gas-motor will stand.

VITAMINS IN SWEETPOTATOS

Sweetpotatoes are a good source of vitamins, say chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture. This vegetable contains as much vitamin A (the antiphthalmic vitamin) as the leafy vegetables. It contains more vitamin B (the antineuritic vitamin) than many other root crops. As a source of vitamin C sweetpotato juice has an ascorbic value equal to about one-third that of orange juice, and one-half that of peach or pineapple juice.

Inside Information

Serve hot foods hot and on hot plates. Serve cold foods cold—not lukewarm. It is astonishing how many homemakers ignore this simple and obvious detail of an attractive meal.

Apple butter may be made with or without cider and is a good means of using up wind-fall and other imperfect apples that must be cooked to be saved. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will tell you how to make it.

Use sturdy washable materials for kitchen curtains. Make them with a tuck in or near the heading to allow for shrinkage. Unbleached muslin, gingham, glass toweling, English prints, or Japanese crepe are good materials to use.

To make old-fashioned creamy rice pudding put a tablespoon of washed rice in a baking dish with 1 quart of milk, one-third cup of sugar, ¼ teaspoon of nutmeg or cinnamon, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cook very slowly in the oven for 2 or 3 hours, stirring often. A cup of raisins may be added.

Water containing iron can usually be improved for laundry purposes by adding a little lime water or washing soda to the water. Stir it thoroughly, let the iron settle to the bottom, and draw off the clearest water. It is better to filter the water through cloth or other material.

How to cure cracked ceilings!

HAVE your carpenter apply the big panels of Upon Board right over the old cracked plaster. Nothing better at any price. Upon Board can't crack—it can't fall. It is nearly twice as strong as ordinary wallboard. Fire and moisture retarding. Properly applied, it will never warp or bulge. Upon Fasteners eliminate ugly nail marks. Why not try Upon Board on one ceiling? You'll like it. Ask us about blue prints, giving trim and color suggestions.

MISS JACQUES TO COACH DEBATERS

Grayling high school has become a member of the Michigan High School Debating League this year and will compete for the interscholastic debate championship of the state, according to an announcement by Professor G. E. Densmore of the University of Michigan, Manager of the League.

The first step in the forensic race for state honors will be taken on November 7 when the local high school debating team, coached by Miss Marie Jacques of the high school faculty will meet one of the neighboring schools to be announced later by the University in a debate on the subject: "RESOLVED: That National Chain Grocery Stores operating in the State of Michigan are detrimental to the people of the State."

The debating of this question has been ordered by the National Chain Store Association, The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, The Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, The Independent Grocers and Meat Dealers Association of Michigan.

Three other state-wide debates on November 21, December 12, and January 9, will constitute the four Preliminary Debates in which all schools will participate in order to compete for entrance in the Elimination Series of debates which begin on February 20.

Only the schools with the highest percentage of victories will be entered in this Elimination Series and each of these schools will receive the University of Michigan Wall Plaque Trophy through the cooperation of The Detroit Free Press. This trophy is in the shape of a shield, the design of which was taken from the well-known University of Michigan shield. Its base is of American Walnut, 17 inches in height and 15 inches across the top, and the medallion, superimposed upon the shield, is 3 inches in diameter, three-eighths of an inch thick, and is cast in solid bronze with all lettering artistically embossed.

While the Elimination Series is beginning on February 20, in progress the schools will debate among themselves with the defeated schools dropping out after each debate until only two undefeated schools remain. These two schools will be taken to Ann Arbor, at the expense of the University, for the State Championship Debate on May 1. Each of the six debaters participating in this final debate will be presented with a gold watch by The Detroit Free Press and both schools will receive a large bronze trophy cup, one engraved First Honors, the other engraved Second Honors, presented by the University of Michigan Extension Division.

The University of Michigan Extension Division will recognize the success attained by the two semi-final schools by presenting each with a bronze trophy cup properly engraved.

A large number of high schools from all parts of the state have already joined the League, and it is expected that by October 10, the date when the League enrollment closes, the membership for the year will surpass last year's record membership of 265 schools.

The final State Championship Debate of last year, held in Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor, where Clawson High School defeated Detroit Northwestern High school was attended by 4,500 people, which is the largest audience ever to attend a debate in this state.

THE LOVE OF BOOKS

"The love of books, the love of books, Surpassing love of maids, And doth not fade with fading looks, Like love of them"

—but of course the bibliophile, who penned the above, and who has been in his grave for many years ago, was referring to the literary masterpieces of the Victorian and pre-Victorian age, and not to the week's best sellers as listed in the Sunday newspapers of today. The writer often wondered as he glanced up at the portrait-poster announcing the celebration of the 125th anniversary of birth of Hans Chris Anderson—which hung in the furniture store window most of the summer—how many of the younger generation had taken any notice of the portrait or had had the privilege of perusing his wonderful tales. He is grateful for a parent-ago that bequeathed, and a boyhood training that instilled, the love of good books. Charles Dickens was a favorite author and The Space Filler still has the volumes in large clear type in which he first read "Oliver Twist," "David Copperfield," "Nicholas Nickleby," "Our Mutual Friend," and the many others. He thought everybody had read Dickens, but on a recent visit to Columbus, Ohio, the shock came which disillusioned him. A large new hotel has risen on the site of the old Neil House across from the capitol, and in speaking of the old history to a young High School graduate and entrant at the University, he referred to the fact that Charles Dickens had been a guest at this hotel when he visited America so many years ago. "Charles Dickens?" said the student, "Who in the Dickens was he?" This query in the flippant manner of the day might have sounded funny if it had been intended as a witicism only, but further conversation exposed this young man's crass ignorance of the writings of this wonderful character portrayed.

WHO SAID HARD TIMES?

One bank apparently can not take care of all the dollars that are floating around loose in Cheboygan and vicinity, as a new banking institution is being organized to take the place of the one which recently closed its doors.

THEM'S MY SENTIMENTS TOO

Two hundred thousand bucks may not seem like very much money to Mr. Groesbeck but my, oh, my, what a lot of concrete it would build in Cheboygan county (or any other county—T.S.F.). As the account was proposed by Alex, that amount would have made a nice little halo as a forerunner of an economical administration. If such an egoist gets a thrill out of seeing his name on the ballot he should have run on tickets at his own expense and saved the state taxpayers the extra burden. Bob Humphrey's "Ramblings" in the Cheboygan Observer.

CARRYING COALS TO NEW CASTLE

—such is the characterization by the Detroit News of the trip to China by a CHICAGOAN and his family, who were SHOT BY BANDITS while in the land of the "hateful Chinese."

SHAW AS A HUMORIST

William Randolph Hearst's paper, the Detroit Times, prints a signed letter from George Bernard Shaw, in which the statement is made that "the United States should elect William Randolph Hearst president as a rebuke to France for his (Hearst's) expulsion from that country." Well, The Space Filler is no politician nor "rebuker," but if he were an Episcopalian he would repeat, "From such calamity, good Lord deliver us." The election of Hearst to the presidency would be like the American people committing hari kari as a "rebuke" to the country who sent Lafayette to help them fight their battles.

Golden State's Mōto

The motto of California is "Eureka," or "I have found it."

Activity of Small Use

if Not Wisely Directed

Aeschylus, one of the greatest of the Greek poets, tells us that "A child pursues the flying bird," and the old Greeks who heard him understood just what he meant. We have often seen a dog go after a flying bird with all possible eagerness; and we smiled at his folly. The dog might be a good runner, but the bird had no need to fear his speed. We have seen a dog chase a railway train and if the dog could think, no doubt when the train had passed beyond its ken it would say to itself, "I chased away that great monster."

Activity is little use unless it is wisely directed. A man may spend a lifetime chasing flying birds, or attempting to catch something which he has never the remotest chance of securing. Men have spent many years trying to discover the secret of perpetual motion, but the secret still eludes humanity. Youth is usually busy at something or other which is perfectly practicable, but occasionally we find a wild chase after the impossible. And, even if the child caught the bird, what would he do with it? Suppose we get what we are after, what good will it be to us? We have seen men catch something which they had been seeking for months, or even years, and when they had secured it they were no farther ahead. The thing was not worth the effort.—London Times.

Harry E. Lobdell.

We started school this year with an enrollment of 27 pupils.

We are proud to wear the department buttons that Mr. Payne gave us. The Eighth grade is studying fall weeds and methods of eradication.

Our ball team is practicing every day for they expect to play with the Love school soon.

The little people are studying the story of "The Little Red Hen" and making picture books.

The Eighth grade are thinking of taking up a collection to buy glasses for Charles Granger so that he will be able to see the hard words in the lesson.

11,000,000 PINE TREES PLANTED

Almost 11,000,000 pine trees, taken from the Higgins Lake Nursery operated by the Forestry Division of the Department of Conservation have been planted in Michigan so far this year.

The fall plantings in the state forests, to begin as soon as weather conditions permit, will add about eight or nine million more trees to the year's total taken from Higgins Lake.

Last spring the Forestry Division planted 9,640,900 small pine trees in the state forests.

The State Highway Department and other state agencies obtained 537,000 pine seedlings and transplants from the Higgins Lake Nursery and the Forestry Division sold 684,411 trees for a nominal sum to the public, making a total of 10,921,711 trees taken from the nursery so far this season.

The trees obtained by the state agencies were used for plantings along highways and on the grounds of various state institutions.

Private individuals, clubs, municipalities, and schools were the principal purchasers of pine trees from the state owned nursery. These trees are sold at costs ranging from two dollars a thousand for the smallest to fifteen dollars a thousand for four year old transplants. These prices were fixed to cover the cost of planting, tending, digging, and packing. The purchases ranged in size from 300 to 10,000.

The Forestry Division now has a large number of private orders for trees, but is withholding shipments until the fall rains, when the ground will be in better condition for planting. If individuals want immediate delivery the trees will be shipped to them; it was said. It is planned to make shipments to purchasers about the same time that trees are taken from the nursery for the fall plantings in the state forests.

Old English Custom

The phrase "hue and cry" was employed in English law to signify the old common-law process of pursuing a criminal with horn and voice. It was the duty of the aggrieved person to raise the hue and cry, and his neighbors were bound to turn out with him to assist in discovering or in pursuing the offender.

Gas in Dental Surgery

In 1840, Horace Wells, American dental surgeon, expressed the idea that teeth might be extracted painlessly by the application of nitrous oxide gas. He tested the efficacy of the gas in this operation on his own person in 1844 and afterward frequently used it in his practice.

NO MEDICINE IN THE WORLD LIKE KONJOLA

"Thought I Never Would Be Well Again," Said Saginaw Lady in Praise Of New Medicine.

MR. BENJAMIN VINCENT

"To me there is no medicine in the world like Konjola," said Mr. Vincent, Sixth and Madison streets, Carrollton, Saginaw. "I was told that I had stomach ulcers. My kidneys were out of order and my back ached all the time. Night risings were frequent. My stomach was so sore, I could scarcely bear the weight of my clothing. My son was then taken ill and we thought we were getting more than our share of misery."

"A friend of mine in the South wrote me about Konjola and told me to take it for my ailments. Two bottles of this great medicine were enough to show me that I was on the right road. I took five bottles in all and at the end of that time my health troubles were over. I eat and sleep as I did years ago and all my health problems have vanished."

Konjola, when taken over a period of from four to eight weeks, banishes and harmlessly relieves ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Grayling, Michigan at the Mac & Gidley drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Guinea Pigs and Rats
The Bureau of biological survey says that there is no foundation for the idea that guinea pigs will keep rats away. If there were contacts between these two animals, it is more than likely that the rats would destroy the guinea pigs.
